What is the Health Disparities Summer Internship?

The Brooklyn Health Disparities Summer Internship Program (BHDSIP) is a paid four (4) week internship held from Monday, July 13 to Thursday, August 6, 2020.

Classes on health issues and health disparities will be held Monday-Thursday online and student interns will work in a group to complete a research project. Students must be available from 9:45am to 2:30pm each day.

Students will have the opportunity to engage with community-based organizations, gain exposure to public health, and develop research and analytical skills.

What are the benefits of participating in the program?

Student interns of the program will: Increase their understanding of health disparities and the impact of the social determinants of health on health issues such as diabetes, cancer, mental health and physical disabilities.

Participate in a special skills-building work-shops on various health issues.

Gain valuable work/volunteer experience that can be useful on college applications and towards overall professional development.

Share their research findings and work experiences with other student researchers, community advocates and legislative members at a virtual closing ceremony.

Students will also receive a $500 stipend upon successful completion of the program, a letter of community service and participate in the closing ceremony.
